Faker Fighters: Media literacy and critical thinking education in a European perspective

Final Conference

About the event

This event is the final activity of the work-plan that JEF Europe implemented throughout 2019. Through this Work Plan, more than 20 educational activities on local and national levels have been implemented with young people all around Europe. The final conference will be an opportunity to present the tools, educational plans and campaign materials that were created during these activities.

The conference will take place in Brussels between 4-7 December, gathering around 100 youth activists and stakeholders coming from all around Europe. The participants will be young people that during the whole year acted as multipliers on the local/national level while implementing educational activities tackling media literacy, critical thinking and European Citizenship.

The specific objectives are:

- To evaluate the different activities and the different outputs of the project.
- To offer space for discussion between young people and political stakeholders on the topic of the work plan to encourage political uptake of the topic by decision-makers
- To celebrate the success of the implementation of Faker Fighters and plan future activities tackling similar topics.

The conference will be facilitated by experienced facilitators affiliated with JEF and proficient in the use of non-formal education with the aim to create space for continuous participation and tailor the sessions to the needs of participants.
